A PAGE FOR WOMEN

NOTICES.

The "Herald's" Page for Women is published on Wednesdays.

Communications should be addressed to The Editor, A Page for Women, Herald Office.

Contributions, from women preferred, will be considered. They should not exceed half a column in length.

THE LARGER HOUSE.

The news that a woman has been elected to the position of Mayor in an English town opens up the question of why Sydney women should not have a voice in the management of their city. It seems rather topsy-turvy that woman should be given a say in the affairs of the country, both Commonwealth and State, and yet she should have no power in municipal matters. She may share in the whole, but not in the particular.

An elderly woman is well fitted to help in the management of a town. She is just as keen and alive to the necessities of a city as a man, and in matters of cleaning and beautifying is more suited to give an opinion than most, for her housekeeping practice helps her to understand the bigger household problems.

Another woman is generally more dependent in a woman than a man, it is a most valuable quality in a city councillor. For the beauty or otherwise—of a town depends almost entirely on its municipal governors. On their shoulders rests the responsibility of keeping the place in trim order and of the beauty of streets to be retained by vulgar or obtrusive signs and advertisements.

It is woman's nature to adorn what she loves. Her home is a delightful place which she can spend her time and energy in beautifying with flowers, pictures and needlework. The city is but a bigger, wider home, which she would beautify in the same way, sweeping clean and washing up every part of her daily life. The world could learn from her into municipal politics.

Beauty and grit and smoke would soon become unknown quantities if she were allowed to bring her housewifely qualities into public use. Defacing advertisements for pills and whisky would be quickly relegated to their proper place, and the public would be supplied with comfortable seats; beautiful trees would be allowed to spread their shady branches undisturbed—in short, the city would become indeed a city beautiful, an enlarged and glorified home where beauty and comfort and cleanliness would be found together just as they are in all well-ordered homes where a woman reigns supreme.

But as the privilege of taking an active part in the management of city affairs is denied us, there still remains the power of helping indirectly, by inciting in the community the spirit of citizenship, which realises that:

"Each before his own door sweep,
The village would be clean."

THE LATEST CULT.

The cultivation of childlessness is a subject which引起 many a question.

While admitting freely the charm of those people who can truly be described as childless, he deplores the effect of their influence over those who would imitate them.

"The truth is," he says, "that a speech of mine is a gift, and gifts cannot be sold; but a certain childless rousiness is on the increase everywhere. A scrupulous regard for other people's feelings is out of fashion. There was a time when kindly words were a rare thing, but now a rousiness is often insisted upon rudeness, when the old conventional politeness is reserved for such acquaintanceship. That any one should come to regard courtesy as a snub and disconcert as a favour is, perhaps, the lowest depth of abominability. Yet there are men and women who do not only succeed in being childless—a quality which is becoming alarmingly prevalent in modern social life."

He declares that this new fashion of childlessness is responsible for a certain roughness which is not in accordance with the author's own ideas of what is right and wrong; but he does not mean that there is no room for a speech of mine. It is a gift, and gifts cannot be sold; but a certain childless rousiness is on the increase everywhere. A scrupulous regard for other people's feelings is out of fashion. LOST IN THE BUSH.

The sound of hurrying feet, the clang of the gun, excited voices and then—

"Baby—has been lost since morning. Please let me know. We must find her."

The poor bushman. Left sleeping in his cold, dark, damp, hole in the ground, he had no idea he would ever find his baby again.

He had to walk through the scrub, and follow the tracks which he had made, but he had already been engaged by two Government wives, Lady Plunkett and Lady Strickland, and they are to take over their duties early in next year.

Another fashion, which the writer condemns, is childless, in the fashion of high spirits. He does not believe it natural, in the majority of cases, eight hours, and several hours of levity to his own sum. "The spirit may be heroic, but social heroism is generally ridiculous than sublime. He does not advocate dulness or dullness, but that affectation of brightness and high spirits he deprecates. "Childish spirit belongs to childhood, but in adults there are a lucky, and they who keep them through life, but they are no more be fit to order than the attitude of temperament."

It certainly does seem to be a convenience many people that unless one is making a great noise one is not happy. Enjoyment to them means loud, laughter, and shrieks of merriment. The result of it all is noise, and fatigued, and the result of noise is weariness. LATE RULERS OF CHINA.

DIE IN SOLITUDE.

VALENTARY DECREES OF REFORM.

LONDON, Nov. 17.
The Emperor, Kwang-Hsu, of China, when dying, issued a valentary decree urging the diligent execution of reforms in order that the nation might be prepared to inaugurate a Constitution in nine years' time.

The valentary decree of the late Emperor Dowager also refers favourably to constitutional reform.

Official Chinese accept the suggestion of the late Emperor that they should play causing the death of either Emperor or Empress Dowager.

The Emperor and the Empress Dowager died alone, the name of the Emperor fearing to approach, owing to the sacredness of their Majesties' persons.

PRINCIPAL VICEROY'S PRECAU-TIONS.

PREVENTION OF DISORDERS.

Owing to the admirable precautions taken by Yuan-shih, Governor-General of Chihli province, no disorders occurred on the death of the Emperor and the Empress Dowager.

Chinese are mourning the death of the Emperor and Empress Dowager. In London and in British Columbia Chinese shops will be closed for three days.

THE BALKANS.

DISQUIETING SITUATION.

ANTI-AUSTRIAN FERMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
It is stated in Vienna that Serbia is aiming far beyond her frontier, reinforcing the frontier to prevent being surprised.

Semi-official advice from Belgrade states that the anti-Austrian ferment in Bosnia and Herzegovina is increasing, and risks at several places are threatened.

The Austro-Hungarian authorities have ordered notables to be confined to their houses by the gendarmerie.

Various garrisons have been strengthened, and mines laid in the passes.

TURKISH MILITARY MEASURES.

CELEBRATED AT ST. PETER'S.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
The Pope celebrated, in St. Peter's yesterday, in the presence of a congregation numbering 70,000, the Jubilee of his first Mass.

Nov. 17.
The Right Rev. Dr. Lenihan, Bishop of Auckland, took part in the Jubilee Mass of the Pope yesterday.

CATTLE-DRIVING IN IRELAND.

A MAGISTRATE'S STOCK.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
Six hundred cattle, sheep, and horses were driven from the estate of Mr. W. Ball, a magistrate, at Ballynacally, County Clare, Ireland.

The herd had been let to several persons on the seven months' system.

One hundred cattle were recovered, and six arrests made.

A DESPERATE NEGRO.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
James Decar, a negro, who was charged with assaulting an Indian boy at Oklahoma (U.S.A.), barricaded his dwelling and shot and killed the sheriff and six others who tried to arrest him.

He then committed suicide, after setting fire to the house, in which his body was incinerated.

KING AND QUEEN OF SWEDEN.

VISIT TO ENGLAND.

LONDON, Nov. 17.
The King and Queen of Sweden are the guests of the King and Queen at Windsor.

The whole of the fleet saluted the King and Queen of Sweden on their arrival at Spithead. The Prince of Wales welcomed their Majesties, and escorted them to Windsor, where they were received by the King and Queen.

THE NAVAL PROGRAMME.

NO ALTERATION THIS YEAR.

LONDON, Nov. 17.
Mr. Asquith, the Prime Minister, replying to a question by Mr. J. R. Lansdale in the House of Commons last night, said that the Admiralty saw no necessity for altering the naval shipbuilding programme, sanctioned for the current financial year, so the Government adhered to it.

TIME LIMIT EXTENDED.

SPERRY'S FLEET.

RECEPTION IN JAPAN.

(FROM A TOKYO WRITER)

LONDON, Nov. 17.
In the House of Commons last night, on the report stage of the Licensing Bill, on behalf of the Government, amendments were moved to clause 3, providing that for seven years after the 14 years when the old license would be renewed, the renewal would include the immediate waiver of the monopoly value. This means that after the expiration of 14 years the State will postpone the resumption of the monopoly value of the surviving houses until the expiration of 14 years.

Mr. Herbert Samuel, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Home Affairs, replying to Mr. Balfour's spirited protest against the "confidential policy" of the Government, declared that the time-limit of 14 years was just, while that of 21 years now proposed was generous.

THE SPERRY'S FLEET.

The arguments for a time limit, which means that after the time specified in the bill, no new port will be granted a monopoly, but should be granted with possessing a currency for one year with no inherent right of renewal, were put by Mr. Asquith, the Prime Minister, in the House of Commons.

He said that the point of the bill was that the time limit quite represented the maximum period of the original period of 14 years.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

SCOPE OF THE WORK.

The annual report of the Department of Agriculture for the year ended June last was tabled in the Legislative Assembly last evening.

It opens with a review of the work done by and through the department, and makes incidental reference to the Hawkesbury College, in respect of which "we have now abundant reason to regret that the area originally selected contained such a large area of poor soil, with no pick spots whatever to redeem it and make it suitable for teaching practical farming on a commercial basis."

The Under-Secretary goes on to say—"It seems to us, if we are at last, after 17 years' waiting, on the eve of getting chairs of agriculture and veterinary science at the University, which will supply a coping-stone to our system of agricultural education. Only one who has had the task of finding competent educated men to take charge of the different branches of work in connection with the technical departments, can realize how important it is to have a complete system of education, which will have its apex in the University and provide for training a succession of young men fit to become the future principals, managers, experimentalists, chemists, entomologists, pathologists, botanists and bacteriologists, who will in turn educate the next generation of agricultural students in the scientific departments of their work."

The total cost of the department, with all its branches, and including cost of stores, amounted to £119,638. The revenue amounted to £20,444, including nearly £6000 repayments for seed wheat lent at various times during the past 20 years. The capital expenditure on the Hawkesbury College and farm, without including the land, was £10,000, while the amount spent on the Hawkesbury College building was £10,373. The expenditure last year, was £19,109, and the revenue £6162, of which £4667 represented college fees.

The policy of the department having been to concentrate a great deal of its activity at the college, the result was that there were 230 students at the institution, which were all of primary status. This seemed to be an anomaly, for the larger number should be at the primary, secondary, and tertiary stages of education, and the number at the college was far from satisfactory.

It was unsatisfactory to find also that out of the large number of students attending the college only 14 completed the diploma of science, and the remaining 216 obtained certificates.

Probably it would be found where all the branches of the educational branches had been properly co-ordinated that the number of students would be reduced to a minimum, and the teaching large numbers of lad who previously education had not fitted them to the advanced studies required in college.

After visits to the experiment stations, which were all of primary status, he came to the conclusion that it would be found where all the branches of the educational branches had been properly co-ordinated that the number of students would be reduced to a minimum, and the teaching large numbers of lad who previously education had not fitted them to the advanced studies required in college.

At the end of the year, the Hawkesbury College would be admitted, having sustained injuries to the back and left hip.
